Your Students' Union is looking for the next team of student leaders - could you be one of them?

Are you looking to gain more experience and skills to boost your CV? Are there issues you are passionate about campaigning on, or things you want to change on campus? Then being an officer might be for you!

Nominations are now open in our annual Officer Elections and we have loads of officer roles available, from part-time roles where you volunteer a few hours each week to full-time paid President roles. You can find out more about all the roles available here.

In particular, we are looking for an LSC London Campus Officer! Campus Officers represent the views of students on their campus, campaigning on issues and running events relevant to those students. As a Campus Officer you sit on Student Council and Student Officer Committee, where you can make sure the SU is representing these students effectively, as well as meetings on your campus that staff hold to gauge student opinion.

All of our officers receive training and support from the SU team, get the chance to be rewarded and enhance their employability through our volunteering award Suffolk +, and get a chance to shape and improve the student experience.

Interested? Head to our Elections Hub to find out more. We'll also be holding workshops throughout the next few weeks to help you find out more and prepare for running to be an officer - more info here.
